

My Journey

I, Mohammed Omer, born on September 7, 2004, in Hyderabad, Telangana, India, am currently pursuing a BCA degree from St Pauls Degree and PG College. Concurrently, I am studying AI Engineering from IBM Networks. I have earned numerous certifications online from platforms like Coursera, HackerRank, AIE, and FreeCodeCamp. I am a certified web developer, specializing in MERN Stack Development, Human-Web Interaction, and Artificial Intelligence. My expertise extends to R, Java, Python, SQL, Tailwind CSS, and various frameworks including NumPy, Matplotlib, Scikit-learn, Flask, Streamlit, TensorFlow, AWS Sagemaker, and Docker. For databases and visualization, I am proficient in MySQL, MongoDB, Tableau, and PowerBI.

I have a keen interest in Artificial Intelligence and have undergone extensive training, including the Web Development Masterclass from Udemy, Data Analyst Intensive Training from Coursera, and AI Engineering from IBM Networks (currently pursuing). My dedication to web development has led me to win three times in web development challenges, ranking in the top 100 worldwide in weekly leaderboards. I have also been featured in digital articles such as The Tellymasala, MyWiki, and Telangana Today.

My journey into professional life began early, as I started working in customer care support while still being in 10th grade, eager to take on responsibilities and progress faster than others. I believe that every rejection is an opportunity for a comeback and a chance to grow. Despite facing rejection in various aspects of life, including from my only cousin and in interviews, I remain determined to succeed.

I've achieved 54 certifications from various physical and digital organizations, including Coursera, FreeCodeCamp, HackerRank, LinkedIn Learning, Udemy, and IBM Networks. In addition to my academic and professional pursuits, I've invested in my physical well-being by setting up a home gym and training twice a day. Recently, I was published in an e-paper, and I'm currently focusing on a short film project. I strive to be an insane multitasker without compromising on other aspects of my life. People have often remarked on my ability to guide others due to my masculine voice, prompting me to dedicate some of my spare time to listening and learning about social psychology as I consider joining a counselor course.

In my free time, I enjoy swimming and focusing on my physical fitness. I am also exploring different Indian cuisines and have a growing interest in cooking.

While I may appear strong and focused on the outside, I also have moments of vulnerability and seek physical bonding and emotional support. I live with my parents but often feel alone, as I don't have siblings to share my thoughts and experiences with. However, I find peace in my two close family friends, whose names I prefer to keep confidential. They mean the world to me and give me the strength to continue working towards my goals, despite my insecurities.

I don't know what their answer will be, but as of now, I don't want to disturb them in their career studies as they are working hard for it, as this might be a distraction for them.

At Last, I wanna say "Glory to the Almighty Allah who blessed me with so many better things in life, I pray that I meet them soon in the righteous way! And may my future be with them! To the one still reading this, may Allah fulfill your wishes!"

Jazakallah Khair! Salamualaikum!!

~M. Omer